

locked securely the night before, and yet he escaped through it without a moment's stop after he shot Mrs. Morrell. It is the theory of the police that he was trying to prepare a getaway on the top floor when he woke the nurse by fumbling at the window catch. In this he showed familiarity with the house.

After leaving the house he had probably vaulted over the three foot hedge around the back yard. At this point his pistol was found, and the police learned how narrowly Mrs. Plaisiot and Mrs. Morrell had escaped with their lives.

It was a long-barreled, double-action Smith & Wesson .38, loaded in all its five chambers. The hammer had struck every one of the five cartridges, but only two had exploded. The others had missed fire, probably owing to the fact that he had greased the chambers and cartridges too heavily with vasoline. Apparently, after firing at Mrs. Plaisiot, he had snatched his pistol as fast as he could and put the trigger in the face of Mrs. Morrell.

The revolver was an army model, and had a big ring at the end of the grip. This accounted for a cut under Mrs. Burns' eye, which was thought at first to have been made with a knife.

When Dr. L. P. Jones arrived he found three injured and frightened women to attend. The bullet had gone through Mrs. Morrell's jaw, blowing out four teeth, and had lodged in the muscles of the neck. The wound was painful and will leave a bad scar, but is not dangerous. There was a long cut on her scalp where she got the butt of the revolver.

The worst that happened to Miss Burns was her broken finger.

The third invalid was Katie Tierney, the cook, who was the best girl of the suspect, John Brown. When the firing started she jumped through a window, glass and all, and cut herself badly. This sudden panic when the trouble broke out convinced the police that she had no part in planning the burglary.

Indeed, if Brown is the man, she seems to have been only a witness. She cried bitterly when she learned that her lover was in jail, and said that they were to have been married next month. He has been calling, irregularly, all summer.

He is a short man, and wore when arrested a derby hat. This fits the description given by both Mrs. Morrell and Isabelle Burns. They both say the burglar wore a mask and that he had a derby hat pulled down over his eyes. So far, no one has found either the mask or the searchlight which the burglar flashed in the face of Miss Burns.

Mr. and Mrs. Converse came over early in the morning and remained with their daughter all day. It was said at Green-wood yesterday that Mr. Converse had given the burglar a tip on another suspect in the case, and that another arrest was expected. Later in the day they did pick up a tramp mechanic, who was sleeping off a jag under a tree, but he was released, cleared of suspicion, in a few hours. The police doubt if the burglar had any accomplices, in spite of the story told by the maids.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrell have been separated for several months. He is Walter Morrell, son of Amos Morrell, who was connected with Heywood & Co., chair manufacturers. The elder Morrell died in 1891, leaving a good fortune to his wife and two sons. Walter Morrell married Miss Converse in 1900. They have two children, Converse, 4 years old, and George, 2.

Shortly after their marriage Mr. Morrell lost the greater part of his own money in stock speculation. There came differences and a year and a half ago they separated, she going to her people and he opening a haberdashery in New York.

Last winter he broke his leg. He was a long time recovering, and when he did get out he developed locomotor ataxia. All this summer he has been at his mother's country house, secluded under the care of a trained nurse, and practically helpless. This disposed of a picturesque theory, sprung yesterday, that the crime was part of a kidnapping plot led by Mr. Morrell in person.

Last night Mr. Converse put the Pinkerton on the case. They had the suspect, Brown, in the police station, and they had all the evening putting him through. He is 28 years old, a native of Ireland and five years in this country. He is the son of the late John Converse, a professional criminal. Neither, in spite of the mask and the getaways, does his job look expert, if it was his job.

A dental specialist was brought up from New York last night to see what could be done about saving Mrs. Morrell's teeth.

WALLACE JUST WALKED OUT.

Tinware Manufacturer Escapes From Riverfront Sanatorium

John W. Wallace, president of John W. Wallace & Co., tinware manufacturers, with offices at Fourth and Twenty-third streets, who was committed to Riverfront Sanatorium, Astoria, 1 year of the County Judge of Suffolk county last week, escaped from the institution early last evening. Within an hour a general alarm was sent out for him and policemen were stationed at his home, 1108 Fergan street, Brooklyn, his factory, 300 South Second street, Brooklyn, and his office, 100 West 10th street. He was found near the factory at midnight.

The attendants of the sanatorium, acting under instructions from the manager, subjected Mr. Wallace to no close espionage. The incidents which led to the verdict of insanity against him were not of a character to justify an inference that he might become violent, and he had been the most tractable patient during the week of his commitment. Consequently he was able to walk out of the place at 10 o'clock last night without attracting attention.

Mr. Wallace's insanity was denoted principally by the manner in which he ran an automobile about the city. It was when he was spending the summer. It was fear for his personal safety that prompted his relatives to apply for the appointment of a commission.

At the sanatorium last night the manager appeared chagrined at the disappearance of his charge. Mr. Wallace simply walked out, he said in response to an inquiry. "I can't say anything more about it, for I know nothing more."

HELLO GIRL FAINTS AT MESSAGE.

Stranger Was Sending News of Her Favorite Cousin's Death.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—Harry Loudenslager, 30 years old, a nephew of Congressman Loudenslager of New Jersey, employed by the Philadelphia Electric company, was instantly killed to-day by touching a live wire as he worked in midair at the top of a light pole. His body was caught in the wire and he fell to his death. His family through a message transmitted by a strange coincidence through his cousin, Steve Loudenslager, employed at the Fourth and Walnut streets telephone exchange.

"Hello, is that the Fourth and Walnut exchange?" he heard.

"Yes," what is it?" she queried, anxious to deliver it, for John Anderson was her father.

"Tell him my nephew, Harry Loudenslager, was killed by an electric wire."

That was as far as the sender got. Miss Anderson had fainted. Loudenslager made his home with her family and was a favorite.

CRANK WITH PISTOL PERMIT.

VAINLY TRIES TO SEE THE PRESIDENT AND IS LOCKED UP.

Collector for a Coal Dealer on the East Side—Has a Scheme for Controlling Coal Output for the Benefit of the Poor—Will Be Examined as to Sanity.

OSTEY, N. J., Sept. 12.—A young man, who admitted he had been suffering from melancholia induced by overwork at a coal mine, was taken to the county jail to-day because he tried to see the President. He had devised a scheme whereby the coal industry of the country could be mutualized for the benefit of the people, he said, and he had further schemes for the abolition of all evil. The Secret Service men got him and arraigned him before the judge, who sent him to the county jail to be examined as to his sanity.

The Secret Service men say that only yesterday he obtained a permit to carry a revolver. He had no revolver here. He says he is Isaac Schamus of 351 East Fifty-second street and 705 First avenue, and was born nearly 20 years ago in Odessa, Russia. He had sent letters and telegrams to the President asking for an audience.

To Squire Franklin the young man said, in oratorical fashion: "I was until recently a bookkeeper in the firm of Joseph Gordon, New York. A few weeks ago I started out as a coal agent for myself. That set me thinking on the subject and I evolved a scheme. With the aid of the President and a few philanthropists I could by my scheme get hold of all the coal output of the country. Should the President refuse, I'll do it myself. Only it would take me at least a year to do it alone. If the President helps me it will take me no time at all."

"Once I get hold of all the coal I shall work Wall Street and study conditions. I am a great student of human nature. The result would be a great benefit to all the people, not to a few miserable—I won't say what."

Have you seen President Baer about this?" asked the Squire coolly.

No, the young man yelled. "But if I do see him I'll call him to his face—a bad name."

While the squire was writing out the commitment for breach of the peace Schamus told the newspaper men that he had become ill with melancholia and dyspepsia, due to indoor work, and that the illness had gone to his head and brought him to the verge of insanity, but that his great scheme had come to him like a ray of light in his gloom. He said he was a member of the Liberal Club, which was devoted to the study of socialism and how to improve the world.

"Do you believe in anarchy?"

"I do not believe in improvement of the world. I do," he said.

Schamus carried a volume of Emerson and of Bacon's essays.

Isaac Schamus is the son of Samuel Schamus, a butcher, in business at 618 First avenue, and living with his family at 231 East Fifty-second street. The elder Schamus said that his son had been three years in the employ of Joseph Gordon, a dealer in coal and wood at 238 East Fifty-second street. Isaac Schamus entered Mr. Gordon's employ as a clerk, and having intelligence and a good education, worked hard enough to earn a place as a trusted employee.

He was agent and collector for Mr. Gordon and carried large sums of money after his hours. It was for this reason, or with this as a pretext, that he applied for a permit to carry a revolver.

Capt. Van Hook, in charge of the information bureau at Police Headquarters, said last night that the procedure in getting a permit requires that an application shall be obtained from the Police Headquarters. It is taken to the captain of the precinct in which the applicant lives and is endorsed by the captain after he is satisfied that the applicant is the person named in the application. The application is then taken to the captain of the precinct in which the permit is issued, signed by the third deputy commissioner.

The squire said that his son was a doubtful little overwork by study and zeal for bettering the condition of the poor. He thought of his own child, who he had thought and his father said that he often had declared that he would like to see the President and interest him in securing a cheaper rate for buying coal for the poor.

J. R. ROOSEVELT INJURED.

Steamboat Smashes Into His Gasoline Yacht and He Is Cut by Glass.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Sept. 12.—J. R. Roosevelt of New York, who is summing here, while out to-day in his 35 foot gasoline yacht, collided with a steamboat of the Merchants' line of Red Bank at the Highlands. A strong wind caused the yacht to drift toward the steamboat. Mr. Roosevelt did not notice the danger until collision was inevitable. The steamboat struck the yacht amidships, crushing in the planking and nearly sinking her.

The woodwork and glass enclosed cabin and everything above deck was smashed. Mr. Roosevelt was cut by flying glass about the face and neck. The auction from the steamboat's paddles drew the battered hull toward the big boat, and it was only by quick work one of the yacht's crew saved her from being capsize.

GRAPE-NUTS.

STRONGER THAN MEAT

A Judge's Opinion of Grape-Nuts.

A gentleman who has acquired a judicial turn of mind from experience on the bench out in the Sunflower State, writes a carefully considered opinion as to the value of Grape-Nuts as food. He says:

"For the past 5 years Grape-Nuts has been a prominent feature in our bill of fare."

"The crisp food with the delicious, nutty flavor has become an indispensable necessity in my family's everyday life."

"It has proved to be most healthful and beneficial, and has enabled us to practically abolish pastry and pies from our table, for the children prefer Grape-Nuts and do not crave rich and unwholesome food."

"Grape-Nuts keeps us all in perfect physical condition—as a preventive of disease it is beyond value. I have been physically impressed by the beneficial effects of Grape-Nuts when used by ladies who are troubled with face blemishes, skin eruptions, etc. It clears up the complexion wonderfully."

"As to its nutritive qualities, my experience is that one small dish of Grape-Nuts is superior to a pound of meat for breakfast, which is an important consideration for any one. It satisfies the appetite and strengthens the power of resisting fatigue, while its use involves none of the disagreeable consequences that sometimes follow a meat breakfast."

COLBY BEATS THE MACHINE.

SECURES NOMINATION FOR STATE SENATOR FROM ESSEX.

Montclair Gives Him All Her Twenty-two Delegates, and His Strength in Newark Surprises Everybody—Perhaps the Regulars May Take Him Up Now.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Sept. 12.—The "singing politician," Everett Colby of West Orange, to-day routed the forces of the machine Republicans at the primaries in Essex county, and to-night the wires are busy sending out the news that his delegates have been returned in a perfect landslide of votes, and that the nomination for State Senator within his grasp.

The campaign of melody wound up in a rain of votes as useful to his ears as they were discordant to the followers of Major Carl Lentz, who is known as the Republican organization leader, but whom Colby has arraigned as the boss of the district. Colby's methods in the campaign consisted of a liberal use of a fine baritone voice, of a competent band to give concerts, and of a stable of automobiles to whisk him from place to place. As a result, it is estimated that twenty-two out of the twenty-two delegates that are chosen from the four wards of Montclair are Colby men, and that the rest are of the Lentz organization.

The "commuters"—the wealthy New York business men who never before have taken part in a contest at the polls—suffered themselves to become interested in this time. They were whisked from the station to their polling places in six automobiles provided for the purpose by two of Colby's delegates who live in the Third ward.

These two men are somewhat opposed in practice to the principles that Mr. Colby has been advocating. He has been keen for the limitation of franchises to public service corporations in this State, and also demands the removal of corporations. His two most diligent delegates in the Third ward, and in the entire city, for that matter, were William B. Dixon, secretary of the American Steel Corporation, and Starr J. Murphy, John D. Rockefeller's legal adviser. However, they turned to like good fellows, notwithstanding the apparent inconsistency, and scurried about all day from the Colby headquarters in the armory of Company K, N. G. N. J., in the Morris Building.

It was early when the polls opened, but there were many at hand to keep the clerks busy. It will be impossible for history to record the exact moment at which Mr. Colby entered the booth in his own particular polling place, although it will be unnecessary. There were so many others crowding in all the time to vote for him that such an act would have taken valuable time out of the election. The result could not afford to lose from the business at hand.

All the elements of Montclair were fused into a conglomerate whole for him. After the spectacle of two corporations men working like demons for him, it naturally was no surprise when the Colby delegates, landlord and tenant, employer and employed all appeared to be agreed that Colby was the one man for them. He was as strong a word, where they have but four delegates to the nominating convention, as he was in the First, where they have six. He was exactly as strong as in the Second and Third wards, each represented by six delegates. And that is all the districts there were for him to be strong in.

The spirit of the fresh young millionaire from Wall Street, which was made by the Lentz forces in order to hurt the Colby cause, had no effect on the election. Colby, who is the son of the late John Colby, of the firm of Herrick, Hicks & Colby, Wall Street bankers. He is 30 years old, married, and has lived for years in West Orange.

The regular machine forces are in four and trembling to-night that Colby will not be content after he has been nominated and elected to the Senate, but that he will go on and try for the place of Congressman and will disrupt the machine in the county entirely. Colby disclaims all ambition for the place of Congressman, but he is a man of deep gloom.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 12.—Everett Colby, independent candidate for State Senator from Essex county, N. J., carried that county last night at the primaries in spite of the most strenuous work in opposition by the Republican organization, which he has vanquished. Colby carried that county last night at the primaries in spite of the most strenuous work in opposition by the Republican organization, which he has vanquished. Colby carried that county last night at the primaries in spite of the most strenuous work in opposition by the Republican organization, which he has vanquished.

The mechanical end of the canvass has not made any nomination in opposition to Colby, but Colby's victory was complete. It was predicted last night that if Colby showed sufficient strength he would be taken up by the regular organization and that it would be a great blow to the good Republican might be announced this morning, and perhaps it would be Halley M. Barrett.

At midnight it was evident that Colby had secured the delegates in the First, Sixth, Eighth, Ninth, Eleventh and Fifteenth wards and had control of the county convention. It was a great blow to the machine and a surprise to everybody.

The returns at midnight indicated that Colby could not be defeated in convention. Of the delegates he had secured nearly 250 and had the control of the county convention. The county outside of Newark conceded to him, and he has enough delegates in the city of Newark to enable him to go to the convention with assurance of success and to carry out his program. He has a great following of the polls the opponents of the dominant leaders will assert themselves more strongly than in last night's primaries.

BOSS DAVIS'S WALKOVER.

Triumph of Seymour, His Candidate for Sheriff of Hudson.

Robert Davis, Democratic boss of Hudson county, was beaten yesterday by a walkover in the primary election. Davis was re-elected in the camp of the regulars late last night when it became known that the opposition headed by Under Sheriff John J. Heavey, who wanted the Shrivley nomination, did not make much of a showing. Delegates pledged to the nomination of ex-Mayor Egbert Seymour for Sheriff were elected all along the line.

It was estimated at a late hour that Heavey polled 2,000 votes in the county. He was beaten five to one in Jersey City. There was no opposition to the election of delegates who will vote for the nomination of ex-Alderman Archibald M. Henry as the Democratic Mayorality candidate.

The police reported no serious trouble. The board in the Second district of the Fifth ward in a divided opinion on the question of tallying a torn ballot, and a cop took them to the First Precinct station because they wouldn't finish the count. They concluded their work in the patrolmen's room.

The regular and anti-organization forces were out early, and every effort was made to get out a full vote. It was the first regular registration, and the Democrats were at the polling places, with the registration officers acting as primary boards. Davis had everything his own way in Bayonne and the North Hudson towns. The Heavey sentiment was strong in Jersey City, and very pronounced in Hoboken.

The Heavey workers were inclined early in the day to charge that the regulars wouldn't give them a fair deal. Davis said that the cry of fraud was ridiculous, and that no unfair advantage could be taken by anybody, as the primaries were conducted under the regular election boards. He prophesied before the polls were opened that Heavey wouldn't elect more than a handful of delegates, and the boys all agreed that "the boss knew what he was talking about."

Ale

An active canvass since last winter. They have attended balls, picnics and outings galore, and have had heart to heart talks with thousands of voters. They have talked politics on the backs of trolley cars, in factories and in the homes, and their personal followers have done the same thing.

The argument of the backers of Mr. Heavey has been that Heavey was entitled to the nomination by reason of long service in the Sheriff's office and fitness. He also declared that Bob Davis has been dictating nominations long enough in Hudson county and the time has arrived when Heavey should step aside and let the voters say whom they wanted for their candidate. To all of this kind of talk Mr. Davis simply looked wise and told his henchmen to get a move on. They obeyed the orders of the boss.

The Republicans had no fight on their hands. Delegates favorable to the nomination of Mr. Heavey were elected. Fagan has been Mayor of Jersey City for two terms. The split in the city is marked. The Republican leaders say, ought to make it an easy task for the G. O. P. to elect their candidate for Sheriff in November.

MAYOR TENBROECK DEFEATED.

The Ashbury Park Republican Primary Selects Charles A. Atkins.

ASHBURY PARK, N. J., Sept. 12.—Mayor Frank L. Tenbroeck, who was a candidate at the primaries for re-election in Ashbury Park, was defeated by Charles A. Atkins in the Republican primary by a substantial majority. Mayor Tenbroeck's attitude in the prosecution of local hotel proprietors is believed to have caused his defeat.

The result will have little effect upon the question of high license in Ashbury Park, as Mr. Atkins has expressed himself in favor of restricted license.

MISS VOSE A SUICIDE.

One of the Wealthiest Women in the Oranges a Victim of Melancholia.

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 12.—Miss Louise Gorham Vose, one of the wealthiest women in the Oranges, was found dead in bed this morning at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Van Vechten of 32 Montrose avenue, south Orange. The cause of her death was melancholia, and Deputy County Physician Simmons of Orange announced that Miss Vose had committed suicide.

Miss Vose had been in poor health a long time, and was a victim of melancholia. She was active in the Orange Valley Congregational Church, and taught at the Orange Valley School. She was about as usual yesterday. This morning, when she did not appear for breakfast, a member of the household went to her room and found her dead in bed and the gas flowing from one of the burners.

The father of Miss Vose, John G. Vose, established the local telephone exchange, known as Montrose, founded the Orange Memorial Hospital, and was one of the organizers of the Orange Valley Congregational Church. He was a member of the Orange Valley Horse Railroad, now one of the Public Service Corporation's trolley lines.

TO DISCIPLINE METAL WORKERS.

Governors of Arbitration Board to Take Drastic Action on Strike To-day.

The general arbitration board of the Building Trades Employers Association and the United Sheet Metal Workers today took up the strike of the sheet metal workers. The board, the union having persisted in violating the arbitration agreement by remaining on strike after being twice ordered to call off the strike pending arbitration, had forfeited its right to remain on the board.

A motion for expulsion of the union from the board was made, and the board showed an inclination to modify the discipline. At a late hour last night it was said that the board of governors will take final and drastic action on the strike to-day to go into effect at once.

A committee of the strikers called at the Building Trades Club in the afternoon and proposed to call off the strike, providing the strikers got $4.50 a day, which they struck for. The Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers got $3.50 a day in 1929, which was increased to $3.75 in 1930 and to $4, their present wages, in 1932.

MISS WALSH ENGAGED?

Rumor That the Senator's Daughter Is to Marry Bradish Johnson.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., Sept. 12.—Miss Eva Walsh, daughter of Senator Thomas Walsh of Colorado, it is said here, is engaged to Bradish Johnson, one of the members of the Meadow Brook colony, and a well known country rider, and poloist. Miss Walsh is stopping with her parents at the Garden City Hotel. She is only partly engaged in the marriage because of injuries received in the auto accident at Newport, which resulted in the death of her brother and the injury of her father, L. Kenneth Walsh of the Meadow Brook Hunt.

Miss Walsh will stop at the Garden City Hotel until her family returns to Washington. No confirmation of the reported engagement could be obtained from the Walsh family at the hotel this evening. Mr. Johnson is with his family at Talip. He is a resident at the Meadow Brook Club this evening.

300 SLAIN IN ONE VILLAGE.

TATARS PROCLAIM HOLY WAR AND MASSACRE ARMENIANS.

Bodies Mutilated and Thrown to the Dogs—Monastery Looted and Helles Stolen—Armenian Christians Agitation Spreading—Restoration of Order in Baku.

Special Cable Despatches to THE SUN.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The districts of Seankur and Jebra in the Caucasus, are swarming with Tatar bands proclaiming a holy war and massacring Armenians, irrespective of age or sex. Three hundred were killed at Mindkend, an Armenian village.

Their bodies were mutilated and the children of Mindkend were thrown to the dogs.

A St. Petersburg despatch to a news agency says that telegrams from Tiflis announce that Prince Tumanoff, Inspector of Railways, was murdered last night by a street car conductor at Atochely station.

The Superior of the Amaras Monastery reports that the monastery has been pillaged and that all the relics and sacred vessels have been stolen.

Bands of Persians are participating in attacks upon Armenians and Russians.

Belated news from Ardum says that Tatar horsemen, armed with rifles, revolvers and daggers, are exterminating the Armenians and burning the caravansaries there.

Furious street fighting is going on at Grozny and Tebehtentz. Tribesmen fired upon a Russian patrol and wounded two men.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 12.—Telegrams from Baku say that the anti-Christian agitation among the Mussulmans is increasing. Several letters inciting the population to violence have been seized.

Baku, Sept. 12.—Although the shops are shut, trade paralyzed and the inhabitants pinched by lack of food, the city is markedly quieter. The tramway service has been partially resumed.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—A news agency despatch from St. Petersburg says that Gen. Worontzoff, Governor of the Caucasus, has resigned, and that Prince Louis Bonaparte has been appointed to succeed him. The latter had an audience with the Czar to-day, who instructed him to adopt a policy that will secure the pacification of the province. The new Governor will start for Baku on Thursday.

PALMA WILL RUN AGAIN.

Accepts Nomination of the Moderates and Talks of Cuban Ideals.

Special Cable Despatches to THE SUN.

HAVANA, Sept. 12.—A committee of representatives of the Moderate party visited President Palma at the palace last night and formally informed him of his nomination for the Presidency.

Señor Palma, in accepting the nomination, made a characteristic speech. He said that the work of the revolution was not concluded yet. What the revolution sought was a model republic, in which the rights of men would be absolutely guaranteed, in which public officers would have as their ideal the strict performance of their duties, in which a moral administration and the honesty of all functionaries would be characteristic of the qualities of the nation, in which the laws and the legally constituted authorities would be always respected, in which the state of the majority would be always respected, and in which the transfer of power would be peacefully made in obedience to the will of the people. This was the idea held by the apostles of the Cuban revolution, and it was also the idea held by the members of the Moderate party.

GIRL RESCUES EDITOR.

Her Plum Pie Gave Him Cramps, and Both Were Nearly Drowned.

NEW ROCHELLE, Sept. 12.—Harry D. Whittle and R. L. Forbes, Westchester county editors, went down to Echo Bay at noon to-day for a swim in the Sound. They swam two pretty girls in bathing suits eating luncheon on the rocks. They proved to be Misses Esther and Nancy Barnard of Evanston, Ill., who are visiting friends in Rochelle Park.

The girls invited the editors to dine with them. Whittle ate two pieces of plum pie. Then he went for a swim, taking Miss Esther with him in a rowboat. Editor Forbes complained that the water was too cold for him, so he sat on the rocks and talked to the other girl.

Editor Whittle and Miss Esther rowed out about 300 yards from shore, and then capsized the boat so that they could stand on the bottom and dive off. Editor Whittle was seized with severe cramps. He tried to get back to the boat without alarming Miss Barnard, but a temporary paralysis put his legs out of commission, and he began calling for help.

Forbes thought his friend was fooling, and shouted: "You should not have eaten so much pie. No wonder you can't swim. I was watching you down, and he realized that Whittle was in peril. Forbes got Life-guard Goodwin and they hurried to the rescue in a skiff. When they reached the boat, they found Whittle and Miss Barnard was holding his head above water with one arm while with the other she clung to the upturned boat. She was nearly exhausted, and held on until Forbes and Goodwin got hold of the drowning editor. He was revived on shore and sent to his home in Mount Vernon in a carriage.

A Fine Suggestion for the Library is beautifully emphasized in a number of pieces influenced by the Elizabethan period. Oak in the deep toned hue of our old Cathedral color creates a "certain" atmosphere for strong refinement and unusual character. Big Sofas, Reading Chairs, Study Tables and Book Cabinets are found in this conception.
